

SliceCream — Loaded Ice Cream Cakes

Not dessert. A premium moment people post.

What It Is

A dessert business selling loaded ice cream cakes instead of plain scoops — each one stacked with different sauces, crunchy toppings, and wild flavor combos. One operator pulls roughly $30k/month from this single twist. Each cake costs about $6 to make but sells for $12-$15, and on busy days he moves 250+ pieces. The real product isn't dessert; it's a premium, post-worthy moment people want to share.

How It Makes Money

High-margin sales of individual loaded cake slices and whole cakes from a kiosk, dessert bar, or delivery kitchen. Customers are dessert-seekers, date-nighters, families, and social-media foodies who pay a premium for the look and the experience. Stack revenue with whole-cake pre-orders for birthdays/events, delivery-app listings, and seasonal limited-edition flavors.

Startup Costs

- Display freezer + chest freezer storage: $700-$2,000
- Ice cream cake molds, ring pans, decorating tools: $200-$700 — Alibaba search "ice cream cake mold silicone springform set commercial"
- Kiosk / counter / cart + branded signage: $1,000-$5,000
- Initial ingredients (ice cream bases, sauces, toppings): $400-$1,000
- Packaging (boxes, slice containers, branded): $200-$600
- Permits / food license / commissary: $300-$1,500
- Per-unit import note: silicone cake mold + tool sets land around $2-$8 per piece from China.
- Total to launch: ~$3,000-$10,000

The Numbers

- Cost per loaded slice: ~$5-$6 (premium ingredients + toppings + packaging)
- Sell at $12-$15 → profit ~$7-$9 per slice
- 250 slices/day × $7.50 profit = ~$1,875/day
- On a strong day at full menu: ~$3,000/day in sales
- Monthly: $25,000-$30,000 gross, ~$12,000-$18,000 net after rent, labor, and restock from one busy location.

How To Start

1. Develop 6-8 signature loaded cakes with bold, photogenic toppings; lock exact costs.
2. Source molds and a display freezer; produce in a licensed commissary kitchen.
3. Get your food permit and packaging that looks premium for delivery and pickup.
4. Set up a kiosk or dessert-bar in a high-traffic, date-night-friendly area.
5. List on delivery apps (UberEats, DoorDash) and enable whole-cake pre-orders.
6. Price as a premium experience — never compete on "cheap scoop."
7. Shoot drool-worthy content daily: the cut, the drip, the toppings cascade.

Where To Get Customers

- Instagram Reels + TikTok of the cake cut and topping drip (the conversion driver)
- Delivery apps (UberEats, DoorDash, Deliveroo) for reach without foot traffic
- High-traffic, date-night and family areas for the physical location
- Birthday/event whole-cake pre-orders via DM and Google Business Profile
- Local food influencer tastings and limited-edition flavor drops

Pro Tips

- Sell the moment, not the calories. Engineer one Instagrammable action per cake (a sauce pour, a topping avalanche) — that's what 250 people a day come to film.
- Premium packaging doubles perceived value. A $0.50 nicer box lets you hold a $13+ price with zero pushback.
- Rotate limited-edition flavors to manufacture urgency and repeat visits — scarcity sells dessert.
